Dear Adath Community,

Happy New Year! As we fully evolve past our Covid years, our congregation is blossoming. So many of you re-experienced the joy of being in community as we joined together in June to celebrate and honor Rabbi Kravitz. As summer comes to a close, our thoughts now turn towards the High Holy Days – their combination of communal joy and serious reflection. This year we will offer many new opportunities to experience both.

Our services and programs this year offer Many Doors to Jewish Life. Adath clergy have been working in collaboration with lay leaders and staff to provide you with many ways to engage with the holidays and with Judaism. There will be opportunities within the walls of the building, as well as outside in our community. They range from our traditional services led by lay leaders and clergy, to schmoozing with fellow congregants, or retreating to the mindfulness of yoga. We encourage you to read through this booklet and create the experience that fits your spiritual needs. I wish you and your family a healthy and happy New Year. May 5784 bring spiritual connection and peace to all of us.

L'Shanah Tovah Tikatevu,

Opening Doors, Welcoming Guests

Share Your High Holy Day Table!

Adath embraces hachnasat orchim – welcoming guests and hospitality – as an important Jewish value and responsibility.

Are you able to share your Rosh Hashanah table or your Yom Kippur break-the-fast meal with a few others? Would you like to be invited to a Rosh Hashanah or Yom Kippur break-the-fast meal? Reach out to Anna Simon, Director of Congregational Life, at annas@adath.net or 952-215-3911 and she will match you with a host or with guests.

Many Doors to Jewish Life

A special message from our clergy

One of our colleagues, Rabbi Carie Carter, once taught that Judaism is like a palace. We have come to appreciate that there are many doors to a palace, and there are many doors to Jewish life at Adath. Some of us open one door and decide to stick around, put our feet up, and get comfortable. Others relish in change. Sometimes we open one door, and it quickly leads us to open another and another! Thankfully, no matter the journey, we never leave quite the same.

The invitation these High Holy Days is to notice what it's like to open the many doors of Jewish life at Adath. Maybe we open a door thinking we don't know enough Hebrew. Or we know too much. Maybe we open a door all dressed up. Or maybe we show up in yoga pants. Some of us feel joyful. Others feel the weight of the world. Or both. One thing we know is whether playful or traditional, laughing or crying, celebrating or mourning, we will always strive to live up to our name as the Gathering of the Righteous, Adath Jeshurun.

Adath Clergy at our Purim Carnival

We're kicking off 5784 with a pulsating Adath. That vitality is felt every day through dynamic learning, prayer, and acts of kindness from our youngest to our oldest. Our daily minyan and Shabbat volunteers, professional staff, teachers, and lay leaders who serve on committees and lead groups regularly open many doors to Jewish life. And this season Adath is fortunate to welcome not just one, but two rabbinical students to enrich our High Holy Day offerings.

We are moving within the same space, but we are not the same. We inhabit different rooms, experience different life stages, and contribute different ideas about what a progressive, egalitarian, and sacred community looks like. That's a good thing. Jewish life has never meant one thing, ever. Much like our ancestors, it is deeply traditional for us to hold diversity within Jewish life and not run away from it.

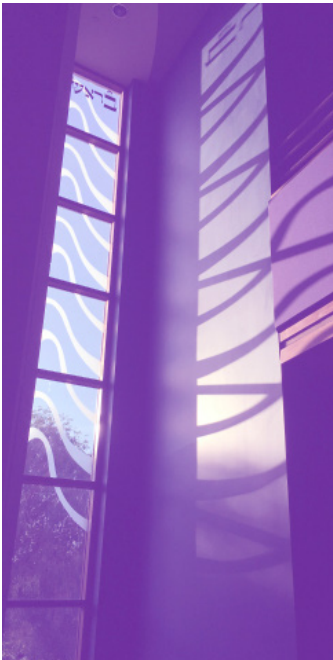

Take some time exploring this guide, whet your appetite for a revamped break-the-fast at the end of Yom Kippur, anticipate trying a new class or service (don't miss our lakeside option!). And stick around for all the fun on Sukkot and Simchat Torah. Find the comfort and the challenge. We can't wait to see you.

With love and gratitude,

Rabbi Aaron Weininger, Senior Rabbi, Max Newman Family Chair in Rabbinics
Rabbi Harold Kravitz, Rabbi Emeritus

The Days of Awe

Selichot – Saturday, September 9

The High Holy Day season begins with Selichot, a collection of psalms, poetry and prayer meant to inspire us to begin the process of T'shuvah - returning. Selichot re-introduces us to the High Holy Day melodies and themes, opening us up to the essential work of the Days of Awe.

Erev Rosh Hashanah – Friday, September 15

We come together to encounter the quiet of the evening that introduces us to the first day of possibility. We gather the strength to engage in personal and communal renewal as we dedicate ourselves to bringing in the New Year in prayer and peace.

Rosh Hashanah Day 1 – Saturday, September 16

Today is the Birthday of the World. We have arrived. It is the day to hear the call of the shofar deep within us all, to be in radical amazement of the world that surrounds us. The synagogue buzzes as our family, friends and community are called together for a day of reflection and renewal. Note: We will not sound the shofar today because it is Shabbat.

Rosh Hashanah Day 2 – Sunday, September 17

The reflection continues. We gather again to resume our journey inward. The Akedah, the story of Abraham's near sacrifice of Isaac his son, challenges us to our core and defines the mood of this service. Through the liturgy, we seek acceptance of our limits and the finding of our truth. Shofar and tashlich will be done on this day.

Kol Nidre – Sunday, September 24

The sun sets, ushering in the holiest day of the year. At Kol Nidre we pray with each other, with all of our imperfections and longings for healing. The liturgy and legendary medley of songs speak of our annulment of vows and invite us in to break new ground, creating space for something new.

Yom Kippur – Monday, September 25

This is the day we all pass before God – a God who is merciful, compassionate, abounding in love, and forgiving. We ask to be granted release. We seek to be made whole, to begin anew, to move forward with our lives with all of the potential and promise that lies within each one of us.

LIMMUD WITH RABBI WEININGER

Limmud – from the Hebrew word meaning “to learn” – is a lively and engaging approach to Torah study.

On Rosh Hashanah, we celebrate the birthday of the world, but so much in the world is upside down. Join Rabbi Weininger as we uncover Jewish wisdom to help us recenter and reorient during times of change. What do ancient and contemporary Jewish sources offer to anchor, challenge, and comfort us as everything seems up in the air?

MOMENTS OF MEDITATION WITH SARAH KLEIN

Join Sarah Klein, one of our Rabbinical Interns for the High Holy Days, for a moment of meditation during Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Sarah will frame our meditation with a short text study inspired by the season, which will be followed by a silent meditation sit. She will guide you through different meditation techniques during your sit, and at the end of our session there will be a conversation about our experiences. Both curious and familiar friends of meditation are welcome to our session for a heartfelt break.

LIMMUD WITH RABBI KRAVITZ

Limmud – from the Hebrew word meaning “to learn” – is a lively and engaging approach to Torah study.

Can a leopard change its spots? Rabbi Kravitz invites us to explore the question: Are people really capable of changing who they are? Exploring character development through the Jewish spiritual practice of Mussar.

Pre-High Holy Day Programming

Pre-High Holy Days Zoom Series with Rabbi Cytron Toward 120: Mortality & Meaning

3 Sessions: Sundays, August 27, September 3, September 10 | 10:30 AM - 12:00pm | On Zoom Only

The High Holy Days reverberate with a notable refrain: Remember us for Life. Yet, for so many, these days are punctuated by loss, as we are pointedly reminded of those whom we loved no longer sitting beside us - parents, partners, spouses, siblings, children, friends.

In this series, we will explore the changing understandings of our Jewish traditions about “final matters”. How do today’s funeral practices compare with those of our forebears, and what do we make of those transformations? Does something of value remain within time-honored prayers, rules and customs that can still speak to our 21st century world of science and technology? When it comes down to it, what can we believe and for what can we hope? Maggie Pistner and Andy Halper will be presenting a midrash drama during the class. Learn more about each session and suggested reading on our website: adathjeshurun.org.

High Holiday Workshop: Six Questions for the Day of Judgment with Rabbi David Thomas

3-part series: August 16, 23 & 30 | 7:00 - 8:30pm | Mount Zion Temple | In Person
$60 (financial assistance & payment plans available)

The weeks leading up to the Days of Awe are a time for heshbon ha-nefesh – self-reflection and personal assessment. The Talmud offers us a framework for this soul searching in the form of six questions we’ll be asked on The Day of Judgment: 1. Did you deal with people faithfully? 2. Did you fix times for study? 3. Did you engage in procreation? 4. Did you hope for salvation? 5. Were your arguments for the sake of heaven? 6. Did you seek deeper meaning in life?

In this workshop we’ll study the source text for these questions and ask: Are these the right questions for us in our time? Then, in a safe and loving environment, we will give participants an opportunity to begin the work of self-reflection. The goal is to provide a framework of for personal perspective, support for your journey, and deeper meaning in your holiday observances. Presented by Hineni, Adath Jeshurun Congregation, Bet Shalom Congregation, Beth Jacob Congregation and Mount Zion Temple. ## A Special Welcome

We are delighted to introduce two exceptional rabbinical student interns, Sarah Klein and Alan Imar, who will be joining our synagogue staff during the upcoming High Holy Day season. We consider ourselves truly fortunate to welcome not just one, but two passionate and talented future rabbis at a time when their leadership is so highly sought after.

Sarah and Alan bring with them a profound dedication and deep commitment to serving the Jewish community. Their presence will undoubtedly enrich our congregation's experience during this sacred season, as we eagerly anticipate the fresh perspectives and insights they will bring to our spiritual gatherings. Let us extend a warm and wholehearted welcome to Sarah and Alan as they embark on this journey with us.

Hi! I'm Sarah Klein. I am an aspiring rabbi educator, and just finished my first year at the Ziegler School of Rabbinic Studies in LA. This Spring, I also received my Master's in Jewish Education from the William Davidson Graduate School distance learners' program of JTS. I am originally from Metro-Detroit and I'm a proud Midwesterner. Before Rabbinical School, I was a program director at conservative synagogues for three years back in Michigan, and then I studied at the Pardes Institute of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem for two years before moving to Los Angeles. In my free time, I love cooking without recipes, reading five different books at once, and listening to Motown music on my Victrola. I have a passion for prayer, meditation, and Jewish spirituality in general. I especially love working with religious school students, young families, and seniors, and I am excited to be adopting a savta soon with my local JFS!

Alan Imar is a product of the Conservative Movement. He received degrees in History from Columbia University (Magna Cum Laude) and Talmud & Rabbinics from The Jewish Theological Seminary (Summa Cum Laude, with Honors). On campus, Alan was the co-chair of the Conservative minyan and was class president at JTS. Throughout college, he worked off-campus as the Music Director of Congregation Beth El's Hebrew School for two years and as an intern at Mercaz USA, the Zionist arm of the Conservative Movement. He spends his summers at Camp Ramah in Wisconsin, where he has been a counselor, Rosh Shira, Rosh Eidah, and Rosh T'fillah. He is pursuing a Masters Degree in Talmud and Halakha at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, while studying for rabbinic ordination. He continues to tutor Hebrew School and B'nai Mitzvah students, as well as teach Adult Education and give Divrei Torah at his home synagogue in Miami. In just under three months, Alan will marry his college sweetheart, Sophia, an aspiring social worker and therapist.

The Adath Foundation is a promise for a Jewish future.

For almost four decades, the Adath Jeshurun Foundation has been a reliable and permanent source of income for Adath Jeshurun Congregation. Aside from dues paid, the Foundation exists as one of Adath's largest sources of permanent income, thanks to the generosity of our Legacy Society members, their families, our congregation, and those who have included the Adath Foundation in their estate plans.

For more information on how you can define your legacy through the Adath Foundation, please contact Talor Blustin, Development Director, at talorb@adath.net or call 952.215.3916.
